Rockwell 34-608 by: Todd I recently picked up a 34-608 from an auction. It's not much different than the 34-600. It is actually a combination machine with a Rockwell 4 inch jointer attached to the side. I'm working on cleaning up the table saw, and other than a little pitch and saw dust, the thing seems to be in perfect shape.

Nicely done; I have a 17-210 ( slow speed pulleys, #2 Morse taper) 600 series, and it's hands down the best drill press I've personally used. If you run across a second generation 17" Delta with the "T"-slotted table, it can be bolted right on the older 17" and opens up a lot of workholding options.
